As one of Canada's leading young commercial and product liability litigators, Deborah provides our clients with advice and strategies to meet their challenges and capitalize on their opportunities.

Deborah Templer is a partner in McCarthy Tétrault's Litigation and Dispute Resolution Group. Known for her discerning judgement and dexterity as a litigator, she acts in both commercial and patent disputes and practises nationally in the product liability and class action fields. She has acted in a full range of litigation matters before provincial and federal courts, tribunals, arbitration panels, and at all levels of appeal, including the Supreme Court of Canada.

Experience as a litigator across practice areas and industries

Deborah is recognized as a Leading Lawyer, Litigation Star and is named among the Best Lawyers in Canada for commercial litigation and product liability in independent publications such as Chambers Canada, The Canadian Legal Expert Directory, Best Lawyers in Canada, and Benchmark Litigation – Canada.

Deborah's commercial practice focuses on contractual claims, economic torts, shareholder remedies and on disputes frequently involving the oppression remedy. She handles significant commercial litigation mandates for clients in the financial services, manufacturing, technology and telecommunications sectors.

Deborah maintains one of the preeminent product liability practices in Canada, having spent years defending Canadian manufacturers and their international parent companies against product liability claims, including multi-jurisdictional class actions. Deborah has unique expertise in defending companies against statutory government cost recovery actions, including health care cost recovery actions in the tobacco, opioid and potential for the environmental space. Her mandates span across industries, including the tobacco, vape, pharmaceutical, and consumer products sectors. Deborah has become a trusted advisor to a number of the world's largest manufacturing and pharmaceutical companies, working alongside in-house
