Tax Planning

Stephanie is a partner in McCarthy Tétrault's National Tax Group and is based in the firm's Toronto office. Her practice focuses on corporate income tax planning, including advising on the tax aspects of cross-border and domestic M&A and corporate reorganizations, private equity transactions and investment fund structuring, and on international tax matters.

Stephanie is known for providing clients with novel solutions to their most difficult issues. With deep technical expertise and experience advising multinational enterprises and private equity funds on their most complex Canadian tax matters, Stephanie's experience crosses many industries, including technology, media and telecommunications, energy, mining and infrastructure, and consumer goods and retail.

Stephanie is a thought leader in the tax profession, frequently presenting and authoring articles on changes to the tax landscape and what business leaders can do to navigate them. Stephanie's recent contributions include co-authoring an article on the mandatory disclosure rules for the Canadian Tax Foundation's Perspectives on Tax Law & Policy publication, and presenting to the International Fiscal Association's Young IFA Network on the foreign affiliate dumping rules and in a joint presentation with the Hong Kong branch on international tax issues.

Stephanie received her JD from the University of Toronto, and an LLM in Taxation Law from Osgoode Hall Law School. Stephanie has also completed CPA Canada's In-Depth Tax Program.
