Law School

McGill University

Dalia is currently pursuing a BCL/JD at McGill University's Faculty of Law. Prior to law school, she completed a Master's in Literature while serving on the boards of directors and advisory committees of multiple nonprofits. She is a former advocate at a Montreal-based organization where she spearheaded a major constitutional lawsuit and helped introduce a bill in the provincial legislature.

During her studies at McGill, Dalia interned at the Québec Human Rights Commission and at one of Canada's largest corporations in the energy sector. She also published articles in academic journals including the Canadian Journal of Law and Society and the Canadian Journal of Women and the Law.

Dalia is passionate about politics, literature, and the Mediterranean.
