Known for her friendly, human and practical approach, Sophie Arpin finds strategic solutions to provide advice for clients with major legal issues. Always attentive to their concerns, she guides and advises clients to achieve the best results.

Sophie Arpin is a partner in the Litigation Group in Montreal. Her practice mainly focuses on civil litigation and disciplinary law, in the context of professional and medical liability.

Sophie is recognized for her strong team spirit and as a devoted mentor for all the firm's litigation associates. Her peers and clients describe her as an exceptional lawyer who listens to everyone's needs and has excellent judgement. She is a person to go to for strategic issues in the area of professional and medical liability. Sophie is known for her human, committed approach and her wise advice.

Her experience includes several lengthy medical liability hearings before the Superior Court. She represents clients before the different levels of civil courts and tribunals, pleading regularly before administrative tribunals, disciplinary councils and quasi-judicial bodies, at all levels. With her acknowledged practical and strategic sense, she successfully pilots clients' cases.

A committed lawyer, Sophie has passed on her knowledge by teaching civil liability courses for upcoming lawyers at École du Barreau du Québec for several years, and she never hesitates to share her expertise with team members.

Sophie completed a Bachelor of Commerce degree (major in finance and accounting), with distinction, at McGill University in 1988, and then obtained her Bachelor of Civil Law (BCL) and Bachelor of Common Law (LLB) degrees, also at McGill University, in 1992.
