Dorothy is known for her keen ability to hone in on the crux of her clients' issues, advocating effectively for their needs and delivering results both in and out of the courtroom.

Dorothy is a partner in our Litigation Group in Toronto and Co-leader of our Health Industry Group. She maintains a broad practice with an emphasis on commercial litigation and dispute resolution, professional negligence, product liability, class actions, and defamation. She has appeared before several courts and tribunals, including the Ontario Court of Appeal, the Divisional Court of Ontario, the Ontario Superior Court, the Ontario Court of Justice, and the Health Professions Appeal and Review Board. She has experience serving as lead counsel at trial and on appeal.

Dorothy regularly acts for companies, including manufacturers, distributors, and retailers in commercial disputes such as contractual claims, product liability matters, class actions, and environmental tort claims. She also has considerable experience advising corporations and individuals on matters related to defending their reputations.

Dorothy's experience includes:

- Defending multiple physicians in professional negligence cases tried by jury and by judge alone;
- Acting for defendants in class action matters, including:
- Successfully resisting certification of a class action on behalf of a pharmaceutical company in relation to an anti-depressant medication alleged to cause birth defects to expectant mothers;
- Successfully resisting certification of a class action on behalf of a marketer and distributor of spirits and wines in relation to allegations of negligence and negligent misrepresentation for ethanol emissions alleged to cause
