Andrew Matheson is the Head of our National White Collar and Investigations Group and a partner in our Litigation Group in Toronto. He specializes in complex and cross-border investigations, regulatory and criminal defence, and professional discipline matters.

Andrew is a Fellow of the Litigation Counsel of America. He has diverse advocacy experience in sensitive litigation and investigations. Andrew has represented clients at all levels of the Ontario court and before various administrative and disciplinary tribunals in the province. He has conducted investigation relating to a wide range of exposures, including fraud, corruption, insider trading, money laundering and tax evasion. Andrew's experience includes practising securities litigation in New York City with Allen & Overy for four years. He was a member of the McCarthy Tétrault team that successfully defended the former CEO of Nortel on criminal fraud charges. Andrew also frequently defends physicians and prosecutes teachers in professional disciplinary matters.

Andrew is active in pro bono work, assisting underprivileged clients in criminal, immigration, commercial and other matters. His experience also includes acting for Guantanamo Bay detainees in habeas corpus litigation. Andrew has been an adjunct professor at University of Toronto Law School, and he continues to mentor the Corporate Securities Moot team. Andrew is a contributor to Annotated Ontario Securities Legislation, Annotated British Columbia Securities Legislation and Canadian Securities Law Reporter published by LexisNexis.

Upon his graduation from the University of Victoria Law School in 1995, Andrew was awarded the McIntyre Prize for academic excellence, leadership and community involvement. He completed his LLM at Columbia University in 2003, graduating as a Stone Scholar, and started his career working with Edward L. Greenspan, QC, defending criminal prosecutions.
