Disponible en anglais seulement

Amanda recently completed her first year of law school at the University of Calgary. She spent her first year exploring various areas of law through creating legal education podcasts with Pro Bono Students Canada and serving as an executive in Environmental Law Society and the Business Law Association.

Prior to entering law school, Amanda completed a Combined Degree in BA Philosophy and BSc Psychology at the University of Calgary. She was highly involved in community-building within the philosophy student group at the university and across Canada, and served as the Undergraduate Student-at-Large at the Canadian Bioethics Society.

In her spare time, Amanda frequents bouldering and climbing gyms and tries to squeeze in weekend hikes in Kananaskis and Banff.
